EXCITED GOVERNOR.

SUBJECT OF DR. TALMAGE'S TALK THROUGH THE PRESS.

Acts 24: xxy-Felly Trembled and Answered: "Go Thy Way for This Time, When I Have a Convenient Season I

Will Call for You." A city of marble was Cesareawharves of marble, houses of marble, temples of marble. This being the ordinary architecture of the place, you may imagine something of the splendor of Gov. Felix's residence. In a room of that palace, floor tesselated, windows curtained, ceiling fretted, the whole scene affluent with Tyrian purple, and statues, and pictures, and carvings, sat a very dark-complexioned man by the name of Felix, and beside him a woman of extraordinary beauty, whom he had stolen by breaking up another domestic circle. She was only 18 years of age, a princess by birth, and unwittingly waiting for her doom -that of being buried alive in the ashes and scorize of Mount Vesuvius, which in sudden eruption, one day, put an end to her abominations. Well, one afternoon Drusilla, seated in the palace, weary with the magnificent stupidities of the place, says to Felix: You have a very distinguished prisoner, I believe, by the name of Paul. Do you know he is one of my countrymen? I should very much like to see him, and I should very much like to hear him speak, for I have heard so much about his eloquence. Besides that, the other day, when he was being tried in another room of this palace, and the windows were open, I heard the applause that greeted the speech of Lawyer Tertullus, as he denounced Paul Now, I very much wish I could hear Paul speak. Won't you let me hear him speak?" "Yes," said Felix, "I will. will order him up now from the guard-room." Clank, clank, comes a chain up the marble stairway and there is a shuffle at the door, and in comes Paul, a little old man, prematurely old through exposure-only 60 years of age, but looking as though he were 50. He bows very courteously before the governor and the beautiful woman by his side. They say: "Paul, we have heard a great deal about your speaking; give us now a specimen of your eloquence." Oh! if there ever was a chance for a man to show off, Paul had a chance there. He might have harangued them about Grecian art, about the wonderful water works he had seen at Corinth, about the Acropolis by moonlight, about prison life in Philippi, about "what I saw in Thessalonica," about the old mythologies; but "No!" Paul said to himself: "I am now on the way to martyrdom, and this man and woman will soon be dead, and this is my only opportunity to talk to them about the things of eternity." And just there and then, there broke in upon the scene for thee." a peal of thunder. It was the voice of a judgment day speaking through the words of the decrepit apostle. As that grand old missionary proceeded with his remarks, the stoop begins to go out of his shoulders, and he rises up, and his countenance is illumined with the glories of a future life, and his shackles rattle and grind as he lifts his fettered arm, and with it hurls upon his abashed auditors the in their hollowness and hypocrisy so bolts of God's indignation. Felix much as in the life and death of that grew very white about the lips. His

to his brow, as though to stop the quickness and violence of his thoughts. He drew his robe tighter about him, as under a sudden chill. His eyes glare and his knees shake, and, as he clutches the side of his chair in a very paroxysm of terror, he orders the sheriff to take Paul back to the guard room. "Felix trembled, and said, Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee." A young man came one night to our services, with pencil in hand, to caricature the whole scene, and make mirth of those who should express any anxiety about their souls; but I met him at the door, his face very white, tears running down his cheek, as he said, "Do you think there bled, and so may God grant it may be so with others. I propose to give you two or three reasons why I think Felix sent Paul heart beat unevenly. He put his hand back to the guard room and adjourned this whole subject of religion. The first reason was, he did not want to give up his sins. He looked around; Is that the man who, only a few there was Drusilla. He knew that when he became a Christian, he must send her back to Azizus, her lawful husband, and he said to himself, "I will risk the destruction of my immortal soul, sooner than I will do that." How many there are now who can not get to be Christians, because they will not abandon their sins! In vain all their prayers and all their church going. You can not keep these darling sins and win heaven; and now some of you will have to decide between the wine cup, and unlawful amusements, and lascivious gratifications on one hand and eternal salvation on the hypocritical thing is all human apother. Delilah sheared the locks of Samson; Salome danced Herod into the pit; Drusilla blocked up the way to heaven for Felix. Yet when I present the subject now, I fear that some of you will say, "Not quite yet. Don't be so precipitate in your demands. I have a few tickets yet that I have to use I have a few engagements that I must keep. I want to stay a little longer in the whirl of convivialty-a few more guffaws of unclean laughter. a few more steps on the road to death, and then, sir, I will listen to what you say. Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thea." Another reason why Felix sent Paul back to the guard room and adjourned | and then I will attend to religion; but this subject was, he was so very busy.

In ordinary times he found the affairs of state absorbing, but those were exwill call for thee!""

was ripe for insurrection. The Sicarii, a band of assassins, were already prowling around the palace, and I suppose he thought, "I can't attend to religion while I am so pressed by affairs of state." It was business, among other things, that ruined his soul, and I suppose there are thou-sands of people who are not children of God because they have so much business. It is business in the storelosses, gains, unfaithful employes. It is business in your law office-subpoenas, writs you have to write out, papers you have to file, arguments you have to make. It is your medical profession, with its broken nights, and the exhausted anxieties of life hanging upon your treatment. It is your real estate office, your business with landlords and tenants, and the failure of men to meet their obligations with you. Ay, with some of those who are here, it is the annoyance of the kitchen, and the sittingroom, and the parlor-the wearing economy of trying to meet large expenses with a small income. thousand voices of "business, business, business," drown the voice of the Eternal spirit, silencing the voice of the advancing judgment day, over-coming the voice of eternity; and they can not hear, they can not listen. They say, 'Go thy way for this time." Some of you look upon your goods, look upon your profession, you look upon your memorandum-books, and you see the demands that are made this very week upon your time and your patience and your money; and while I am entreating you about your soul and the danger of procrastination you say, "Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee." Oh, Felix, why be bothered about the affairs of this world so much more than about the affairs of eternity? Do you know that when comes you will have to stop business, though it be in the most exacting period of it-between the payment of the money and the taking of the receipt? The moment he comes you will have to go. Death waits for no man, however high, however low. Will you put your office, will you put your shop in comparison with the affairs of an eternal world? Affairs that involve thrones, palaces, dominions eternal? Will you put 200 acres of ground against immensity? Will you put forty or fifty years of your life against millions of ages? Oh, Felix, you might better postpone everything else! for do you not know that the uphoistering of Tyrian purple in your palace will fade, and the marble blocks of Cesarea will crumble and the breakwater at the beach, made of great blocks of stone sixty feet long. must give way before the perpetual wash of the sea; but the redemption that Paul offers you will be forever? And yet, and yet, and yet you wave him back to the guard room, saying, 'Go thy way for this time; when have a convenient season I will call traordinary times. The whole land

Again, Felix adjourned this subject of religion and put off Paul's argument, because he could not give up the honors of the world. He was afraid somehow he would be compromised himself in this matter. Remarks he made afterward showed him to be intensely ambitious. Oh, how he hugged the favor of men! I never saw the honors of this world wonderful man, Charles Sumner. As he went toward the place of burial, even Independence hall, in Philadelphia, asked that his remains stop there on their way to Boston. The flags were at half-mast, and the minuteguns on Boston Common throbbed after his heart had ceased to beat. Was it always so? While he lived, how censured of legislative resolutions, how caricatured of the pictorials; how charged with every motive mean and ridiculous; how all the urns of scorn and hatred and billingsgate emptied upon his head; how, when struck down in senate chamber, there were hundreds of thousands of people who said, 'Good for him, served him right!" how he had to put the ocean between him and his maligners, that he might have a is any chance for me?" Felix trem- little peace, and how, when he went off sick, they said he was brokenhearted because he could not get to be President or secretary of state. Oh Commonwealth of Massachusetts! who is that man who sleeps in your public hall, covered with garlands and wrapped in the stars and stripes? months before, you denounced as the foe of republican and democratic institutions? Is that the same man? Ye American people, ye could not by one week of funeral eulogium and newspaper leaders, which the dead senstor could neither read nor hear, atone for twenty-five years of maltreatment and caricature. When I see a man like that, pursued by all the hounds of the political kennel so long as he lives, and then buried under a great pile of garlands, and amidst the lamentations of a whole nation, I say to myself: What an unutterably plause and all human favor! You took twenty-five years in trying to pull down his fame, and then take twenty-five years in trying to build his monument. My friends, was there ever a better commentary on the hollowness of all earthly favor? If there are young men who read this who are postponing religion in order that they may have the favors of this world, let me persuade them of their complete folly. If you are looking forward to gubernatorial, senatorial or Presidential chair, let me show you your great mistake. Can it be that there is now any young man saying, "Let me have

Indian cemetery, unearthing a mine political office, let me have some of the high positions of trust and power,

And now my subject takes a deeper tone, and it shows what a dangerous thing is this deferring of religion. When Paul's chain rattled down the marble stairs of Felix, that was Felix's last chance for heaven. Judging from his character afterward, he was reprobate and abandoned. And so was

One day in southern Italy there was a trembling of the earth, and the air got black with smoke intershot with liquid rocks, and Vesuvius rained upon Drusilla and upon her son a horrible tempest of ashes and fire. They did not reject religion; they only put it off. They did not understand that that day, that that hour when Paul stood before them, was the pivotal hour upon which everything was poised, and that it tipped the wrong was Their convenient season came when Paul and his guardsman entered the palace; it went away when Paul and his guardsman left. Have you never seen men waiting for a convenient season? There is such a great fascination about it, that though you may have great respect to the truth of Christ, yet somehow there is in your soul the thought, "Not quite yet. It is not time for me to become a Christian." I say to a boy, "Seek Christ." He says, "No; wait until I get to be a young man." I say to the young man, "Seek Christ." He says, "Wait until I come to mid-life." I meet the same person in mid-life, and I say, "Seek Christ." He says, "Wait until I get old." I meet the same person in old age, and say to him, "Seek Christ" He says, "Wait until I am on my dying bed." I am called to his dying couch. His last moments have come. I bend over the couch and listen for his last words. I have partially to guess what they are by the motion of his lips, he is so feeble; but rallying himself, he whispers, until I can hear him say, "I-am-waitingfor-a-more-convenient-season" and he is gone! May God Almighty forbid that any of you, my brethren or sisters, act the part of Felix and Drusilla, and put away this great subject. If you are going to be saved ever, why not begin to-night? Throw down your sins and take the Lord's pardon. Christ has been tramping after you many a day. An Indian and a white man became Christians. The Indian, almost as soon as he heard the gospel, believed and was saved; but the white man struggled on in darkness for a long while before he found light. After their peace in Christ, the white man said to the Indian, "Why was it that I was kept so long in the darkness, and you immediately found peace?" The Indian replied, "I will tell you. A prince comes along, and he offers you a coat. You look at your coat, and you say, 'My coat is good enough, and you refusehis offer; but the prince comes along and he offers me the coat, and I look at my old blanket and I throw that away, and take his offer. You, sir," continued the Indian, "are clinging to your own righteousness, you think you are good enough, and keep your righteousness; but I have nothing, nothing, and so when Jesus offers me pardon and peace, I simply take it." My reader, why not now throw away the worn-out blanket of your sin and take the robe of a Saviiour's righteousness-a robe so white, so fair, so lustrous, that no fuller fon earth can whiten it? O, shepherd, tonight bring home the lost sheep! O. father, to-night give a welcoming kiss to the wan prodigal! O, friend of Lazarus, to-night break down the door of the sepulchre, and say to all these dead souls as by irresitible fiat, 'Live! Live!"

Permission to be granted a sitting by her majesta was always refused, till one up-todate photographer issued to the trade a counterfeit presentment, which was so unlike as to be almost a caricature. The royal vanity was touched, and theuceforth appeared more pleasing and much more truthful portraits of the empress
